FARMS FOR SALE.

—BY—

The Parker State Bank,

PARKER, Linn County, KANSAS.

PARKER is on the M. K. T. Ry. 60 miles south of Kansas City; 25 miles west of the Missouri State line; has 475 people, a $8,000 school building, three churches, (Methodist, Christian and Presbyterian). The country around is rather more level than rolling; soil in north-west quarter of Linn county is mostly red, partly black loam and some gray soil; soil is less spotted than most of the eastern counties in Kansas.

These prices are the prices actually asked by the owners, are very reasonable and will not be lowered and are subject to the sale of land; the Real Estate solicitor of the bank has taken pains to get an attractive list of farms from among the bank's customers and, on a low commission. We invite personal investigation of what we have to offer.

* * * If you mean business we will take pleasure in showing you over the country. If you do not see fit to buy land, you will be under no obligations.

100 acres, one mile and a half from Parker; one-third in timothy and clover, balance in pasture, some stony; 4-room good house, cheap for the money, $4,400.

160 acres, 3 miles from Parker; postoffice and store on farm; dog station a few rods distant; house of five rooms, good double crib and poor barn; 20 acres in timber pasture, living water, about 100 acres in corn, $4,400.

100 acres, one and a half miles from Parker; neat, well built 3-room house, new orchard, good water, this land all gently rolling and in cultivation; is rented now for two-fifths of corn in crib and one-third of small grain delivered; rented to a choice of several tenants (can get possession, however). Farm is the best 160 acres out of 800 acres that belonged to one man; has been carelessly tended but is in good hands now; for location, soil and lay of land cannot be beaten. Price, $5,250.

270 acres, 2 1/2 miles from Parker (splendid prospect for good crop); this is an A No. 1 farm for general purposes and very cheap for the money, $25 per acre. (Above land lies 9 miles S. E. of Parker, nearer two other towns.)

80 acres, one mile from Parker, good big barn and lots of shed room, fair house, good orchard. One-third in tame grass; farm is in good state of cultivation, good out cellar, plenty of water and shade. Price, $3,000.

310 acres, 5 miles north-west of Parker, improvements are first-class in every particular, newly planted, nearly all natural grass, a first-class stock farm. $30 per acre.

640 acres, depot on land; 3 sets of improvements, all connected by telephone, is good land, very little rough or broken, stream runs through, affording lasting water for stock; main improvements are two dwellings in yard, double crib all neatly painted. This tract is 3 miles south of Parker. Price, $25 per acre. One-third cash.

290 acres, 80 acres of it rough pasture, balance is nice laying and good soil; 100 acres in crops, balance natural and blue grass. Price, $6,500.

100 acres, 3 miles from Parker, all smooth and nearly all in cultivation, mostly in tame grass; 7 room house and barn for 11 horses, besides room for 1,000 bushels of corn, new granary and crib; the dryest year the threshing engines got water here; fruit and big maple grove, evergreens, etc. $4,500.

80 acres, adjoining the above with good story and a half house, good framed barn and other out-buildings; all smooth and in cultivation; across the road from good new school house; house just re-modeled. Price, $2,500. 7 1/2

New Mining Company.

At Harrodsburg, Ky., articles of incorporation of the Chinn Mineral Company were filed. Capital stock $10,000. The business is that of mining and selling all kinds of mineral products, oil and fire clay, buying, leasing and operating mineral lands in Mercer, Jessamine and Woodford counties.

Suicide.

H. T. Robinson, of Georgetown, a traveling salesman, committed suicide in a Lexington hotel by drinking carbolic acid.

Hay Fever Follows Civilization.

Hay fever is the price of civilization.

Modern methods of living, especially in America, increase the nervous diathesis or temperament, which is the principal condition in the foundation of this disease.

An English physician, Dr. Bos-tock, in 1819, gave what is supposed to be the first description of hay fever. Several years afterwards he collected and reported 30 cases. In 1876 it was estimated that there were between 25,000 to 50,000 cases in the United States. In 1902 the estimate rose to over 300,000 cases in this country alone. Reports from England and Germany would indicate the increase there is nearly as great.

These facts and statistics are subjects for the great physiologists of our country, and will sooner or later demand national attention.

The name of this disease undoubtedly originated with the people who noticed that the symptoms were brought on or made worse during the hay making period. While the name indicates a disease associated with fever, the victim seldom has an increase of the bodily temperature, after hay fever has the sensation of burning in the eyes, nose, mouth and skin.

The regular date in which attacks begin corresponds with the date in which nature ripens the different pollen. June being the month of roses we have some cases which are poisoned by the rose pollen, which floats in the air at this time. These cases are as a rule milder than those affected later. Then there are some affected by the pollen that floats about the first week in August, but the greater number of cases in this locality are affected by the pollen of ragweed or goldenrod, which ripens about August 15.

Experiments have been made to count the number of pollen floating in the air during a season. A round glass, such as is used in microscopical work, was coated with glycerin and exposed to the wind. In the beginning of the season 25 pollen would collect on the glass in 24 hours. At the height of the season there were 850 pollen collected in 24 hours. It was found that when 75 pollen were collected in this way, the symptoms would begin in some cases, while when 300 were collected violent symptoms would be present. Thus, it can be seen it is possible that in the future the weather bureau may notify the hay fever cases when it is safe to venture out.

For the relief and cure of this disease it is necessary to eliminate one or more of the three conditions. Thus, when a patient goes to a climate free from his particular poisonous pollen, he obtains temporary immunity. A permanent cure can be made by correcting one or both of the other conditions.

Henry Ward Beecher had hay fever and he wrote the following from personal experience: "You never before even suspected what it really was to sneeze. If the door is open, you sneeze. If a pane of glass is gone, you sneeze. If you look into the sunshine, you sneeze. If you sneeze once, you sneeze 20 times. It is riot of sneezes. First a single one, like a leader in a flock of sheep, bolts over; and then, in spite of all you can do, the whole flock, 50 by count, come dashing over—in twos, in fives, in bunches of 20."—Dr. E. Smith.

Kansas City Platform Endorsed by Ohio Democrats.

Tom L. Johnson was nominated for Governor without opposition by the Ohio Democratic Convention at Columbus Wednesday. John L. Zimmerman's name was not placed before the convention. John H. Clarke, of Cleveland, was endorsed for United States Senator despite considerable opposition. A full State ticket was named, all the nominations being made by acclamation. Frank S. Monnett, a former Republican, well-known for his aggressive fight against trusts, was nominated for Attorney General. The platform endorses the Kansas City platform.

Democratic Leaders of Kentucky to Attend the Glad Gathering.

The grand opening of the Democratic State Campaign will be made at Winchester, Saturday, September 5, by Governor Beckham.

It is estimated that one of the largest crowds ever assembled on the soil of Kentucky will be at the Clark capital on that day. The special train capable of carrying one thousand people from Lexington to the rally has been engaged.

Contracts were also made for one thousand gallons of Gus Jaubert's famous burgoo, to be used at the barbecue.

On that day there will be an outpouring of Democrats that will strike terror to the Republican heart.

Prominent Democrats of the State will take part in the program.

Among them will be United States Senator, James B. McCreary, Congressman, Ollie James, of the First Kentucky district, while a number of the candidates of the State ticket will be present and will be heard from.

Kentucky's Judiciary Assemble Informally.

A notable gathering of legal lights and circuit judges took place Tuesday night, August 25, at Georgetown. It was altogether an impromptu affair, unexpected, and without purpose or design.

State Chairman, Allie W. Young, Judge J. J. Osborne, of Cynthia, and Commonwealth's Attorney J. Stanley Webster, Police and Fire Commissioner J. L. Watkins, President John Skain, or the council chamber, City Jailor John W. Masner and Chief G. W. Muir, of Lexington, went over.

Upon their arrival at Georgetown they met Judge J. C. Cantrill, Judge Robbins and Judge Williams. An informal dinner was served.

The gathering was unique in that it comprised four circuit judges of the State, namely Judge Cantrill, Judge Robbins, Judge Osborne and Judge Allie Young, that is now so on to be.

The dinner was a delightful affair and Allie Young was the lion of the occasion. Upon him were showered numerous compliments tendered in a most charming fashion, for the master hand he had displayed in the game of State politics, and the splendid condition in which the Democratic party is now found as a result of his efforts and leadership.

"TICKET SURE TO WIN."

Senator McCreary Returns to Enter the Campaign.

At Louisville, United States Senator James B. McCreary called at Democratic headquarters and accepted the appointment to speak with Gov. Beckham and the Hon. Ollie James at Winchester next Saturday.

"I have spent my vacation gathering strength for a warm campaign," said Senator McCreary. "I have offered my services to the committee here and will speak as often as they find a date and place for me. When I look over the field and size up the situation I am filled with enthusiasm to see Democracy in such splendid shape. The victory this fall will be won by one of the old-time Democratic majorities, and we want to roll it up as high as possible. We have to thank our Republican brethren who were delegates to their convention for naming a ticket that will be the easiest to beat of any we have encountered for some campaigns past. Gov. Beckham will be elected by a big majority."

Thos. F. Hargis' Will Leaves Property to Widow.

The will of the late Judge Thos. F. Hargis leaves the entire estate to his widow, with the condition that if his children survive her the estate is to revert to them. The document disposes of 137,000 acres of land in the mountains of Kentucky, valuable only for the minerals underlying it, and also of stock in various concerns to the amount of $418,000, all of which is involved in litigation. The estate is not so valuable as the will indicates, a greater portion of the land being of small value on account of its location. The will is as follows: "I own 147,000 acres of land in Pike, Perry and Letcher counties, which I want held until the country is developed unless my wife and children badly need the proceeds.

"I own $67,000 of the stock of the Commonwealth Land and Lumber Company in the hands of the Kentucky National Bank or George W. Bramblett, neither of whom has paid anything thereon and both of whom are responsible therefore if they have sold or converted it to their own use or the use of either of them.

"I own one-half of 4,000 acres in partnership with W. F. Hall, of Harlan, in said county, and have title bonds therefor. It is valuable land."

State Reunion of Mexican War Veterans.

The annual State reunion of Mexican war veterans will take place at Richmond, September 15, and indications point to one of the largest and most successful gatherings in years. In that county there are only five survivors. There are only about 100 Mexican veterans in the State.

Root Tenders Resignation to President.

Secretary Root, under date of August 19, presents his resignation formally to the President. The resignation was accepted by the President with the understanding that Mr. Root continue as secretary of war until at least January 1.

Governor General William H. Taft of the Philippines, will succeed Secretary Root as secretary of war.

All by Acclamation.

The Republican Convention for the Nineteenth judicial district of Kentucky, and also for the Thirty-first Senatorial district, was held at Vanceburg, Ky., on Wednesday. The Hon. Joseph B. Bennett, of Greenup, was unanimously nominated for Circuit Judge; the Hon. Ed Daum, of Brooksville, the present Commonwealth's Attorney, was renominated, and Senator W. H. Cox, of Mayesville, was also renominated. All the nominations were by acclamation.

Government Printing Office employees will be required to take the oath of allegiance to the United States under an order issued by Public Printer Palmer.

SPARING USE OF THE POWER OF PARDON.

The Courier Journal has printed a full list of the pardons granted by the last three Governors, Brown, Bradley and Beckham—and in view of the savage attack made on Gov. Beckham for alleged abuse of the pardoning power the comparison is highly instructive. Briefly summarized, the tables show the following facts:

| PARDONS. | |
|----------|-----|
| Beckham | 183 |
| Bradley | 349 |
| Brown | 302 |

| LIFE CONVICTS. | |
|----------------|----|
| Beckham | 11 |
| Bradley | 56 |
| Brown | 51 |

| MURDER. | |
|---------|----|
| Beckham | 10 |
| Bradley | 72 |
| Brown | 45 |

| MANSLAUGHTER. | |
|---------------|-----|
| Beckham | 33 |
| Bradley | 104 |
| Brown | 101 |

The statistics, which completely refute the charges against the present Governor, have been prepared by Secretary Joseph P. Barlow, of the Prison Commission.

The list shows the names of prisoners actually released by pardons, and gives the names, the place received from, the term and the date released.

The record shows that Governor Beckham has released from State prisons just half as many convicts as either of his predecessors.

It shows that Bradley released seven times as many murderers as Beckham, and Brown four times as many.

It shows that Bradley and Brown each released three times as many persons for manslaughter as has Beckham.

It shows that Bradley and Brown each released five times as many life convicts as has Beckham.

Much Ado—Personal Matter.

The Republican organ of Kentucky, the Herald, published at Louisville, is making much ado through their Frankfort Correspondent. It would by this method work up a sympathy and an old time mares nest as well. That chap of a correspondent went up against the wrong metal, got a talking to by one and a blow from another for making statements which they claim to be false. That is all there is in it, purely personal. We publish extracts from cards of the parties who resented the insults. Mr. Hubert Vreeland and Charles Howe Vreeland's statement in part:

"I was standing in the west door of the Executive building talking to an aged ex-Confederate soldier about some papers which I had promised to give him. Three negro janitors were sitting further down on the steps. No one else was in sight. Presently I saw Mr. Washer coming toward the steps. I had no knowledge that Mr. Howes was even in the hall, when he hurried past me from behind, and, much to the surprise of those present, struck Washer in the face, knocking him down just as he reached the head of the steps. Washer got up and walked away. Nothing gave a disordered imagination or a deliberate falsifier could have concocted the story that I, backed up by State officials, had paraded out with Mr. Howes to hack him up in his attack on Mr. Washer. I was already standing on the steps before I knew that Washer had the slightest idea of coming up there or that Mr. Howes had ever thought of making the attack. Not by word or act did I have the slightest part in the affair. It occurred without any foreknowledge on my part, and it was by the purest accident that I happened even to be a witness to it.

"It is true that on the day preceding I called Washer a liar in as impressive a manner as I knew how because he had deliberately written a false statement about me in return for an act of kindness on my part toward him.

"This Republican organ began its misrepresentation of me the day after the State primary when it credited me with receiving about 6,000 more votes in Louisville than I actually received, saying I received 17,000 when my vote was near 11,000. It followed this misrepresentation by making it appear that I was elected by the Louisville vote, whereas my plurality outside of Louisville was about 15,000. It sought to make political capital out of these misrepresentations, which it was not honest enough to correct when it knew the facts. Therefore, this latest misrepresentation might have been expected from such a source."

MR. HOWES' SIDE.
Speaking of the trouble, Mr. Howes said:

"While I was in the Treasurer's office on Wednesday morning in company with Mr. Day, the Assistant Treasurer, and Mr. Vreeland, the clerk to the Commissioner of Agriculture, the Herald's correspondent, Mr. Washer, came up the steps of the building and was met at the door of the Treasurer's office by Mr. Vreeland. I knew since Mr. Vreeland felt exasperated over the article in the Herald of Wednesday, but I had no knowledge that he intended to say anything to Washer, and while the argument between Washer and Vreeland was going on there was not the slightest indication on the part of Mr. Day or myself that assistance would be given Vreeland. I did not say a word or attempt to interfere in any way. Naturally the next morning when Washer's account of the affair implicated me, and said that I would be willing to swear anything to get Vreeland out of trouble. I was exasperated, and when I saw Washer coming up the walk I went to meet him. No one knew where I was going or what I intended to do. Meeting him at the top of the steps of the Executive Office I struck him full in the face (not in the back, as he would have the public believe) and knocked him down the steps. "I felt the insult more because I had been especially courteous to Washer during his sojourn here. Soon after he was sent here by the Herald, I was detailed to give him whatever information he desired, and I have faithfully done so with out in anywise paying attention to the many misrepresentations he has made about the Governor and the Secretary of State's office.

"There was never the slightest justification for the charge that I aided or abetted Mr. Vreeland in his calling down of Washer, and my attack on him was of the purest personal nature, actuated by my feeling of resentment toward him for his unwarranted attack on me. For this I assume full responsibility, and I make no apology to any one, not even to Washer of the Herald."

Drunk Chicken Arrested.

The strangest prisoner ever taken to the Seventh street police station, Jersey City, was a drunk chicken, says the New York Times.

The festive bird was arrested on Friday afternoon at Sixth and Henderson streets. It had escaped from a crate that was being transferred from the Pennsylvania freight yard to New York. The driver did not attempt to recover the bird, and it wandered along Henderson street until some joker concluded to have some fun by feeding it with corn soaked in whiskey. It swallowed the grains greedily, and when Policeman George Stratford saw the bird there could be no question, he said, that the fowl was drunk. He took it to the police station, and Sgt. O'Brien, who was at the desk, formally committed it to a cell to "sleep off its drink."

There was no perch in the cell on which it could roost, and even if there had been, Stratford says, the bird was too intoxicated to occupy an upper berth. It looked around drowsily, toppled over on the floor and went to sleep.

A question arose as to what would be done with the bird, but Mrs. Murphy, the janitress, settled that difficulty by killing the chicken and eating it for dinner.

It is one of the traditions of the department that a policeman named Brady once arrested an elephant, but the story is not true. The elephant, which had escaped from a circus, was found wandering in the street, and Brady merely drove it to the police station in order that it might be restored to its owner.

Says he Refrigerated Her.

Mrs. Luella Mott, in a tresspass suit instituted against George Bailey of Dalton, in the Lackawanna County Court, alleged that Bailey locked her up in the refrigerator at his crematory, and kept her a prisoner until she signed a paper.

It was on September 11, 1902, that Bailey, the declaration averred, had the woman come to his home and demanded that she sign the paper which he offered her. She refused to do so, and he locked her up in a cold room that was used for dairy purposes. She remained there many hours, hoping that her jailer would release her, but after she had been half frozen, and seeing no way of escape, she signed the paper and was released. She sued for $2,000 damages. Her husband, N. L. Mott, sued for an additional $500.—New York World.

The Game of Gossip.

How a Story Grows on Its Way from Person to Person.

Examples of the way in which stories grow by repetition until the final form in the case is lost in vague and uncertain statements are illustrated by this story from the Washington Post, told by a woman who had been spending some time in a winter resort.

"Of course I made many acquaintances at the hotel," she said, "and one day Mrs. Jones was rather rude. I didn't care particularly for Mrs. Jones, but I was anxious to know why she had acted as she did, for she had been especially cordial to me; so I asked Mrs. Smith.

"Mrs. Smith said that Mrs. Jones said she had been told that I had spoken of her as a 'smart Aleck' Mrs. Smith further stated that it was all over the place that I had used the expression. Since Mrs. Brown had told Mrs. Jones.

"I went to Mrs. Brown and asked her about it. She said that Mrs. Green had told her I said it. I went to Mrs. Green, and she admitted telling Mrs. Brown that I had said Mrs. Jones was entirely too smart; not a 'smart Aleck,' but entirely too smart. Mrs. Green had not heard me say it, but Miss Grey, who told her, had.

"I went to Miss Grey. Miss Grey declared that she had it from Mrs. White that I had said Mrs. Jones was too smart, not 'entirely too smart,' just 'too smart.' So I went to Mrs. White.

"Mrs. White stood firm. She said I had called Mrs. Jones too smart, and she heard me say it clear across the room, and that Mrs. Black was with me when I said it.

"I went then to Mr. Black and put the matter to him. Mr. Black is an Englishman. I asked her when and where I had spoken of Mrs. Jones. She would not remember at first; then after a bit she began to laugh.

"I know how the story started now," she said. "Don't you remember the cloudy morning when you and I were sitting in the parlor, and Mrs. Jones came through dressed in that blue foulard? I said when I saw her: 'How smart Mrs. Jones is to-day?' and you said: 'Too smart for a day like this. It's going to rain.'"

"And there it all was. I had thought Mrs. Jones too smartly dressed to venture forth under a threatening sky. Did I go to Mrs. Jones? No. I was so disgusted with the whole affair that I never mentioned the matter again, and I suppose Mrs. Jones will always believe that I called her a 'smart Aleck.'"

FUNERAL FLOWERS.

Hospitals Do Not Like to Receive Elaborate Floral Pieces.

"What in the world inspires people to send elaborate and costly floral pieces directly from funeral homes to hospitals?" said an official of Bellevue hospital the other day, when an undertaker unloaded a dozen anchors, harps, pillows, etc., on the hospital lawn, according to the New York Sun.

"This is only one case out of many in which people who think they are doing an act of kindness get no thanks whatever for their pains. What do you imagine would be the feelings of a score of patients, some of whom are dangerously ill, if they saw that big floral harp placed in a conspicuous position in the ward, knowing, as they certainly would, what purpose the flowers had recently served? Would the thought that their own flowers might be contributing floral pieces before long hasten their recovery to any extent?"

"I won't allow such things in my ward," said a house physician. "The patients simply won't have them because they know immediately what use they have been put to."

As for these particular flowers, they were left on the lawn until nurses and hospital employees who didn't care what they had been used for carried them away and relieved the hospital authorities of the trouble of disposing of them.

Many undertakers separate the funeral flowers from the wire framework, and turn them in to the hospitals in the shape of bouquets, making them both useful and acceptable, and destroying the evidences of the purposes which they have served.

Cured

At 70 of Heart Disease Contracted

During Civil War—Veteran Grateful.

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure Effected Cure.

Heart disease is curable, but in people of advanced age it does not readily lend itself to ordinary treatment. There is, however, hope for all sufferers in Dr. Miles' Heart Cure, which we know from watching hundreds of cases and from the letters of grateful sufferers, will cure where all else has failed. It is not only a wonderful cure for weak and diseased hearts, but it is a blood tonic, a regulator of the heart's action and the most effective treatment ever formulated for improving the circulation of the blood.

"During the Civil War I contracted heart disease, and in 1866, while living in the grand old town of Lexington, Va., I grew so much worse, I left there with my wife to visit my sister-in-law, Mrs. T. A. Kido, at Roundsville, Va. While I said nothing to anyone I never expected to live, to return to the dear old town. On reaching Mrs. Kido's she insisted I should try Dr. Miles' Heart Cure. I procured a few bottles of it, and after using one or two bottles, I could see no improvement, and I despaired of ever being better, but my faithful wife insisted on keeping it up. Which I did. My improvement soon began to appear and I took in all fifteen or sixteen bottles. I was restored to perfect health and while I am 70 years old, I am comparatively a boy. You may be benefited, and I cheerfully recommend Dr. Miles' Heart Cure to suffering humanity."—J. L. SLATKIN, Salem, Va.

A SUBSTITUTE FOR COAL.

The Eucalyptus Tree May Some Day Furnish the World's Fuel.

All trees and plants are stores of the sun's energy, but all do not possess this property in an equal degree. The eucalyptus appears to have it in greater measure than other trees, as was first noted in 1882 by D. E. Hutchins, of Cape Colony, and Sir A. Brandis. Mr. Hutchins has been again directing attention to Nature to find that coal. Says the Scientific American Supplement, in an abstract of his article:

"According to Mr. Hutchins, a eucalypt plantation in tropical mountains, such as those of Africa, under favorable circumstances, stores up about one per cent. of the solar energy received on the unit of area, and it is considered much cheaper in some parts of Cape Colony to plow up the land and plant a forest of quick-growing trees than to import coal.

"In 1882 Mr. Hutchins and Sir A. Brandis, as result of their experiments, discovered that eucalypts planted on tropical mountains produce fuel at the rate of 20 tons—dry weight at 60 pounds per cubic foot—per acre in perpetuity. The eucalypt plantation reproduces itself when cut without further expense, and its dry timber, heavier than coal, has an equal or higher thermal power, bulk for bulk, than coal. This result was obtained as a measurement of the maximum yield of Eucalyptus globulus on the Nilgiris, Southern India. If a chance tree on a chance mountain in a chance soil can produce the equivalent of 20 tons of coal per acre per year, it seems not unreasonable to suppose, Mr. Hutchins suggests, that by selection double this, or 40 tons, can be produced. A powerful sun, a heavy rainfall, and a very rapid forced growth are the essentials of such a production of wood fuel. A glance over the rainfall map of the world shows these conditions are fulfilled over about 8,000,000,000 acres of its surface, which is between one-fourth and one-fifth of the total land surface of 33,200,000,000 acres. One-half of this area under forest might thus yield the equivalent of 160,000,000,000 tons of coal yearly, which is more than 288 times the world's present consumption of coal, assuming that coal and eucalypt timber are of approximately equal heating power. On the basis of the actual forest yield of the present day, we have half of this, or the equivalent of 80,500,000,000 tons. In Germany, one-fourth of the total area is under forest, and taking the German standard of one-fourth forest on the basis of the present maximum yield, we should obtain 40,250,000,000 tons, while if the maximum forest yield be converted to an average forest yield there would still remain a yearly product of 20,125,000,000 tons, which is rather more than 30 times the world's present consumption of coal. Thus it is seen that the yield of firewood from the world's tropical and extra-tropical forests, wherever they are fully stocked and scientifically worked, will yield the equivalent of 70 to 120 times the present consumption of coal, or even up to 243 times the present consumption, if by cultivation the present timber yield be doubled, as it might be without difficulty."

New Kinds of Nickel-Steel.

Prof. R. H. Thurston, of Cornell University, calls attention to a curious variety of nickel-steel alloys, recently invented in France, which he thinks may have more importance for the world than the form of nickel-steel that has given us the modern battleship. The new alloys are practically non-dilatative, that is, their dimensions do not alter with ordinary changes of temperature. Thus, a pendulum of constant length can be made, and already the new material is employed in making clocks and watches to run true in both winter and summer. For measuring instruments of precision, like those employed in geodetic surveys, these alloys are particularly suited. The inventor, Monsieur Guillaume, is also experimenting with nickel-steel as a substitute for the carbon filament of the ordinary incandescent lamp.

Drunk Chicken Arrested.

The strangest prisoner ever taken to the Seventh street police station, Jersey City, was a drunk chicken, says the New York Times.

The festive bird was arrested on Friday afternoon at Sixth and Henderson streets. It had escaped from a crate that was being transferred from the Pennsylvania freight yard to New York. The driver did not attempt to recover the bird, and it wandered along Henderson street until some joker concluded to have some fun by feeding it with corn soaked in whiskey. It swallowed the grains greedily, and when Policeman George Stratford saw the bird there could be no question, he said, that the fowl was drunk. He took it to the police station, and Sgt. O'Brien, who was at the desk, formally committed it to a cell to "sleep off its drink."

There was no perch in the cell on which it could roost, and even if there had been, Stratford says, the bird was too intoxicated to occupy an upper berth. It looked around drowsily, toppled over on the floor and went to sleep.

A question arose as to what would be done with the bird, but Mrs. Murphy, the janitress, settled that difficulty by killing the chicken and eating it for dinner.

It is one of the traditions of the department that a policeman named Brady once arrested an elephant, but the story is not true. The elephant, which had escaped from a circus, was found wandering in the street, and Brady merely drove it to the police station in order that it might be restored to its owner.

Says he Refrigerated Her.

Mrs. Luella Mott, in a trespass suit instituted against George Bailey, of Dalton, in the Leekawanna County Court, alleged that Bailey locked her up in the refrigerator at his creamery, and kept her a prisoner until she signed a paper. It was on September 11, 1902, that Bailey, by declaration averred, had the woman come to his house and demanded that she sign a paper which he offered to her. She refused to do so, and he locked her up in a cold room that was used for dairy purposes. She remained there many hours, hoping that her father would release her, but after she had been half frozen, and seeing no way of escape, she signed the paper and was released. She sued for $2,000 damages. Her husband, N. L. Mott, sued for an additional $500.—New York World.

THE GAME OF GOSSIP.

How a Story Grows on Its Way from Person to Person.

Examples of the way in which stories grow by repetition until the real fact in the case is lost in vague and uncertain statements are illustrated by this story from the Washington Post, told by a woman who had been spending some time in a winter resort.

"Of course I made many acquaintances at the hotel," she said, "and one day Mrs. Jones was rather rude. I didn't care particularly for Mrs. Jones, but I was curious to know why she had acted as she did, for she had been especially cordial to me; so I asked Mrs. Smith.

"Mrs. Smith said that Mrs. Jones said she had been told that I had spoken of her as a 'smart Aleck.' Mrs. Smith further stated that it was all over the place that I had used the expression. She said Mrs. Jones had told Mrs. Jones.

"I went to Mrs. Brown and asked her about it. She said that Mrs. Green had told her I said it. I went to Mrs. Green, and she admitted telling Mrs. Brown that I had said Mrs. Jones was entirely too smart; not a 'smart Aleck,' but entirely too smart. Mrs. Green had not heard me say it, but Miss Grey, who told her, had.

"I went to Miss Grey. Miss Grey declared that she had it from Mrs. White. I had said that Mrs. Jones was too smart, not 'entirely too smart, just too smart.' So I went to Mrs. White.

"Mrs. White stood firm. She said I had called Mrs. Jones too smart, and she heard me say it clear across the room, and that Mrs. Black was with me when I said it.

"I went then to Mrs. Black and put the matter to her. Mrs. Black is an Englishwoman. I asked her when and where I had spoken ill of Mrs. Jones. She could not remember at first; then after a bit she began to laugh.

"I know how the story started now," she said. "Don't you remember the cloudy morning when you and I were sitting in the parlor, and Mrs. Jones came there and crossed in that blue frock? I said when I saw her: 'How smart Mrs. Jones is to-day?' and you said: 'Too smart for a day like this. It's going to rain.'"

"And there it all was. I had thought Mrs. Jones too smartly dressed to venture forth under a threatening sky. Did I go to Mrs. Jones? No. I was so disgusted with the whole affair that I never mentioned the matter again, and I suppose Mrs. Jones will always believe that I called her a 'smart Aleck.'"

A SUBSTITUTE FOR COAL.

The Eucalyptus Tree May Some Day Furnish the World's Fuel.

All trees and plants are stores of the sun's energy, but all do not possess this property in an equal degree. The eucalyptus appears to have it in greater measure than other trees, as was first noted in 1852 by Dr. E. Hitchins, of Cape Colony, and Sir A. Brandis, Mr. Hitchins has been again directing attention in Nature to this feature of the tree, which he believes will make it more valuable as a fuel than coal. Says the Scientific American Supplement, in an abstract of his article:

"According to Mr. Hitchins, a eucalyptus plantation in a tropical mountain such as in South Africa, under favorable circumstances, stores up about one per cent. of the solar energy received on the unit of area, and it is considered much cheaper in some parts of Cape Colony to plow up the land and plant a forest of quick-growing trees than to import coal.

"In 1883 Mr. Hitchins and Sir A. Brandis, as result of their experiments, discovered that eucalyptus planted on tropical mountains produce fuel at the rate of 20 tons—dry weight at 60 pounds per cubic foot—per acre in perpetuity. The eucalyptus plantation reproduces itself when cut without further expense, and its dry timber, heavier than coal, has an equal or a higher thermal power, bulk for bulk, than coal. This result was obtained as a measurement of the maximum yield of Eucalyptus globulus on the Nilgiris, Southern India. If a chance tree on a chance mountain in a chance soil can produce the equivalent of 20 tons of coal per acre per year, it seems not unreasonable to suppose, Mr. Hitchins suggests, that by selection double this, or 40 tons, can be produced. A powerful sun, a heavy rainfall, and a very rapid forced growth are the essentials of such a production of wood fuel. A glance over the rainfall map of the world shows these conditions are fulfilled over about 8,000,000, 000 acres of its surface, which is between one-fourth and one-fifth of the total land surface of 35,200,000,000 acres. One-half of this area under forest might thus yield the equivalent of 160,000,000,000 tons of coal yearly, which is more than 288 times the world's present consumption of coal, assuming that coal and eucalyptus timber are of approximately equal heating power. On the basis of the actual forest yield of the present day, we have half of this, or the equivalent of 80,500,000,000 tons. In Germany, one-fourth of the total area is under forest, and taking the German standard of one-fourth forest, on the basis of the present maximum yield, we should obtain 40,250,000,000 tons, while if the maximum forest yield be converted to an average forest yield there would still remain a yearly product of 20,125,000,000 tons, which is rather more than 20 times the world's present consumption of coal. Thus it is seen that the yield of firewood from the world's tropical and extra-tropical forests, wherever they are fully stocked and scientifically worked, will yield the equivalent of from 30 to 122 times the present consumption of coal, or even up to 243 times the present consumption, if by cultivation the present timber yield be doubled, as it might be without difficulty."

New Kinds of Nickel-Steel.

Prof. R. H. Thurston, of Cornell university, calls attention to a curious variety of nickel-steel alloys, recently invented in France, which he thinks may have more importance for the world than the form of nickel-steel that has given us the modern battleship. The new alloys are practically nonmagnetic, that is, their dimensions do not alter with ordinary changes of temperature. Thus, a pendulum of constant length can be made, and already the new material is employed in making clocks and watches to run true in both winter and summer. For measuring instruments of precision, like those employed in geodetic surveys, these alloys are particularly suited. The inventor, Monsieur Guillaume, is also experimenting with nickel-steel as a substitute for the carbon lamp of the ordinary incandescent lamp.

Bought Homes at Frankfort

At Frankfort Judge T. J. Nunn purchased the residence of John Mastin. James Safelt, the distiller, purchased the residence or Courtland Chennault. South Frankfort, now occupied by Judge Nunn.

The arrest of Jason W. Geist, on the charge of obtaining money by false pretenses, in Louisville, is alleged by the detectives to reveal a glant advertising swindle, which has been worked all over the country, and which is said to have netted millions for the promoters.

Young Plants

Every farmer knows that some plants grow better than others. Soil may be the same and seed may seem the same but some plants are weak and others strong.

And that's the way with children. They are like young plants. Same food, same home, same care but some grow big and strong while others stay small and weak.

Scott's Emulsion offers an easy way out of the difficulty.
Child weakness often means starvation, not because of lack of food, but because the food does not feed.

Scott's Emulsion really feeds and gives the child growing strength.

Whatever the cause of weakness and failure to grow—Scott's Emulsion seems to find it and set the matter right.

SO SOOTHING.

Its Influence Has Been Felt
by so Many Mt. Sterling Readers.

The soothing influence of relief
after suffering from Itching Piles, from Eczema or any itches of the skin, makes one feel grateful to the remedy. Doan's Ointment has soothed hundreds. Here's what one Mt. Sterling citizen says:

T. S. Garrison, farmer, living one mile from town on the Grassy Lick pike, says: "When I state that Doan's Ointment is the best remedy for healing and allaying irritation that I ever came across, I know what I am talking about and I have my opinion on the following: For a number of weeks I was greatly troubled with a bad sore on the back of one of my hands.

It was caused from a bruise and so painful was it at times that I could scarcely use my hand. In spite of all I could do and those of numerous salves, ointments and everything that I could hear of, the irritation became worse and kept gradually spreading. Doan's Ointment was brought to my attention and I procured a box at F. C.
Duerson's drug store. I had but little faith in it, but after one or two applications I noticed the inflammation being reduced, and it was only a short time before the trouble was entirely removed."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn

Jackson Orderly Under Capt.
Longmire.

The provost guard, numbering twenty six men, are now located comfortably in the court house yard. Camp Jackson has been cleaned up and turned over to its owner.

The following is the first general order issued by Captain Longmire:
Provisional Headquarters,
Jackson, Ky., Aug. 24th, 1903.
General Order No. 1.

Let it be understood that the men remaining on duty are not, under any consideration, to engage in any discussion with anyone with regard to the situation of affairs in Breathitt county, as they are here solely for the purpose of assisting the civil authorities in maintaining law and order. Any one violating this order will be severely punished.

By order of
C. W. LONGMIRE,
Captain Commanding.

The Coming of the Corn.

"Thou visitest the earth and waterest it; thou greatly enrichest it with the river of God, which is full of water; thou preparest them corn, when thou has so provided for it."

These cheering and sweet words of the psalmist have fallen true for us. After a failure of corn in these parts for three seasons, the valleys and hills, too, are covered over with corn, and the tired buyer goes about his promising fields with a grateful song in his heart to Him who crowns the year with this goodness.

But already we begin to fear that there will be too much rain; for the showers grow heavier and more frequent. Even as we write, the clustering clouds and heavy thunder indicate a downpour at hand.
Should the ground become saturated and remain so long, there will be a great backset in the cotton outlook—which has improved in a wonderful degree for the last fortnight. May the hand that waters the ridges temper the elements to the show lamb.

No Indictment.

The special term of the Owsley Circuit Court adjourned without indictment for the assassination of Judge Hyden. Caywood and the Allens, indicted for murder, were taken to Richmond for safe keeping.

Stop Watch as a Witness.

The first of the automobilists who were arrested Sunday for the violation of the city speed ordinance, says the Chicago Inter Ocean, was arraigned before Justice
Ely. The defendant was H. T.
Parr, 136 Winthrop avenue.

Mr. Parr said he was certain that he was not running faster than eight miles an hour when he was arrested, until the evidence of the stop watch with which he was timed was introduced. After that he had no defense to make, except that he was endeavoring to keep within the limits. He was fined $20, and paid it.

Rained Toads in Utah.

A tremendous rainfall was accompanied by a great fall of toads.
People coming into Ogden encountered an army of hoppers. There were millions of them from an inch to an inch and a half long. They were so deep on the highway that they clogged the wheels of vehicles, and it was with difficulty that teams could get through. Nothing like it was ever seen or known in that section. The theory is advanced that the storm was the end of a distant cloudburst, but where the cloud picked up the toads is a mystery.—Chicago Record-Herald.

MRS. L. S. ADAMS.
Of Clinton, Texas.

"Wine of Cardui is indeed a blessing to tired women. Having suffered for seven years with weakness and beating-down pains, and having tried several doctors and different remedies with no success, your Wine of Cardui was the only thing which helped me, and eventually cured me. It seemed to build up the weak parts, strengthen the system and correct irregularities."

By "tired women" Mrs. Adams means nervous women who have disordered menues, falling of the womb, ovarian troubles or any of those ailments that women have.
You can cure yourself at home with this great women's remedy, Wine of Cardui. Wine of Cardui has cured thousands of cases which doctors have failed to benefit. Why not begin to get well today? All druggists have $1.00 bottles. For any stomach, liver or bowel disorder Thedford's Black-Draught should be used.

STOOPS.

Tobacco housing has begun. Rain came too late to redeem the corn crop.

Mrs. N. Byrd, Jr., is improving slowly. George Mason has returned to his home in Lee county after a brief stay here.

George McCloskey has gone to Glenwood, W. Va.

The only thing the Republicans of Kentucky can find to harp about is that the Governor has the pardoning power. Seems like they have been a "long" time finding it out.

Miss Bryant, of Kansas City, is the guest of her uncle, W. H. Bryant.

Richard Wilson has returned to Ashville, Ohio, after a visit to relatives here.

W. H. and M. W. Bridges attended the funeral of Mrs. N. Reid Patterson at Owingsville Thursday.

Some people who are all the time making an "out blow" are about ready to "blow out."

Mrs. H. Conn, who has been quite sick, is recovering.

Belknap boasts that he is going to carry Kentucky this fall. We don't deny that, for he is going to carry it for Heckham.

Bruce Paxton and wife and Miss Little Caywood have returned to their homes in Fleming county after a visit to relatives in this vicinity.

N. B. Young has erected a tobacco barn on his farm near here. Bridges Bros. had two hogs to die of hydrophobia last week.

John W. Thompson, Geo. Warren and Forrest Waldeck went to Slate creek fishing Saturday. They report a small catch.

Tom Wren and sister, Miss Birdie, of Rose Run, were the guests of relatives here Saturday and Sunday.

Miss Virginia Byrd entertained a number of her friends Friday night.

Thieves visited the premises of Joe Coons Friday night and took five gallons of lard and about 30 chickens.

Rain prevented the High Top-Stoops base ball game Saturday afternoon.

This neighborhood was visited by a wind, rain and hail storm Saturday afternoon. Little or no damage was done.

Rev. R. M. Caldwell preached two very interesting sermons at Springfield Sunday.

Mrs. Jesse Morgan, of Bourbon county, visited relatives here Sunday.

Mrs. Joe Coons and son, Emmett, visited relatives at Spencer Saturday and Sunday.

Will Kissick, our popular ladies man, visited in Fleming county Sunday and Monday.

Special Commissioner M. C. C.
LEWIS ATTORNEY, ADV. FOR FEE.

Fit and Style!

There are some things which can't be improved. One of these things is the "Queen Quality" Shoe for women. You can make it more elaborate, you can decorate it, embellish it, use costly materials and all that. But for $100 a pair than "QUEEN QUALITY," having regard solely to the two great essentials of FIT and STYLE. This means that mechanically it is perfect. As for its appearance, the fact that one hundred thousand women choose it instantly above all other shoes would seem to indicate that it is attractive. Why don't you go as far as to try on a pair the next time you go to the store? It costs nothing to see them fit your foot.

You Cannot Make a Better Shoe

Boots, $3.00. Oxfords, $2.50.

MARRIAGES.

M'GILL-TALBOT.

Miss Louise Talbot, of Versailles, Ky., in the engraving and printing department of Washington, was married to Randolph McGill, a druggist, of Washington.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

Miss Alice Elizabeth, second daughter of Mrs. Emma L. Chesnut, of this county, will be married October 14th to Mr. James G. Kelley, Jr., of Springfield, Ill. The wedding will be a quiet one, consummated at home. Miss Chesnut is of Virginia blood on the one side and on the other of the historic Chesnut family, who settled in the pioneer days in the Blue Grass section of Madison. She is the very embodiment of grace, beauty and culture, with popularity only circumscribed within the radius of her acquaintances. Mr. Kelley was educated at Georgetown College, is a man of fine attainments, with flattering prospects for the future.

Roberts & Mastin have received most of their well-selected and up-to-date purchases and offer the trade something nice.

City Council meets to-night.

He served two terms as a member of the Legislature from Shelby county. He leaves a widow, one daughter, Mrs. Andy Hudson, and five sons. He is the uncle of H. R. Bright, of this city.

MOORE—Earl, aged 6 years, son of Kelly P. Moore and wife, died at their home near North Middletown, on Sunday morning, August 30, 1903, of typhoid fever. The Christ who said: "Suffer little children to come unto me and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of Heaven" will keep the precious one until that day when in heaven there can be a reunion.

COCKRELL—On last Sunday morning her home in Cumberland Gap, Mrs. George Cockrell, from paralysis, aged about 63 years. Her remains were brought here and Remarkable Accident.

On Monday at a mill on Clear Fork, Rowan county, a young man of Yale, was severely injured. A revolving saw struck a piece of timber 55 inches long, 84 inches wide and 1 inch thick (tapering to the end) driving it through the leg below the thigh. Only about 4 inches of this piece failed to pass through his leg. Before this could be drawn out the long part of stick was sawn off next to leg. No bone was broken or large artery cut. Medical aid could not be secured for fully four hours. His escape from death was remarkable.
